"BRIGHT FUTURE FOR RETAIL STORE TRADE"

Association Head In Prediction For The Year '34

Says Government Projects Will Help Business — Flays Pessimists Who Retard Recovery

Speaking as President of the National Retail Dry Goods Association for 4500 department and specialty stores in the United States, and for the retailing trade in general as chairman pro tem of the National Retail Code Authority, Lew Hahn today visualized 1934 as a year of increased business activity in which the already apparent upward trend would reach its fulfillment through the cooperative efforts of government and business.

He saw beneficial reactions in industry as the result of increased holiday sales, looked with favor on the government's major recovery projects, and expressed the opinion that uneasiness over President Roosevelt's money policies was uncalled for. While unwilling to anticipate what Congress might do in handling currency problems he advised business not to hesitate on this account but "go out for the big opportunity

Selectmen In Move To Enforce Law

The Board of Selectmen at its meeting last night re-appointed Chief Daniel Tierney, as Forest Warden and George M. Dolan as Moxh Suppression superintendent.

In order to enforce Chapter 20 of the Acts of 1933 and stop the sale of all liquors of alcoholic content of over 3.2 per cent the board appointed Chief of Police Archie F. Bullock and his officers as agents for the board. Because it is felt that hard liquor will be sold here despite the fact that Arlington voted dry a few weeks ago, the Selectmen are determined to fight the menace.

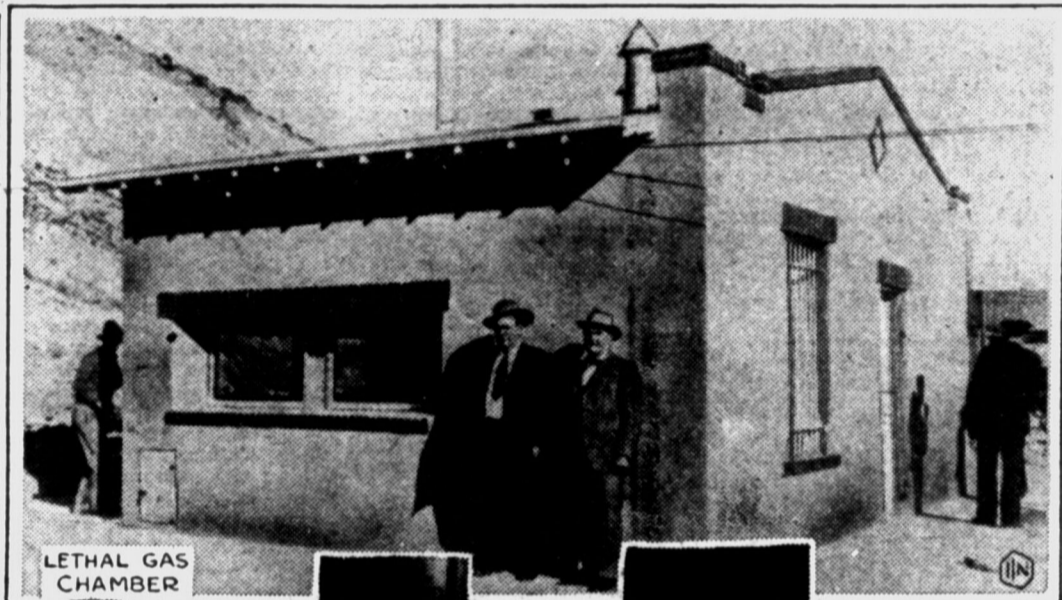

Bids for the printing of the Town report were opened and the contract awarded to the Hampshire Press of Cambridge which was the lowest bidder. It will do the job for $2.09 per page. The highest bid of nine submitted was $2.65 per page.

The Board authorized the purchase of a new auto for the police department to replace a 1932 model that is in very poor condition.

Named To State Art Committee

Mrs. Marion I. Ford, art supervisor in the town schools, has received notification from the board of directors of the Massachusetts Teachers' Federation that she has been appointed a member of the special state art committee. Arthur Burke of Cambridge is chairman of the committee. The first meeting will be held the twentieth of January.

Colorado's Lethal Chamber and First Victim

GOV. JOHNSON

THE DEATH CHAIR

WALTER REPPIN

"I guess there's sumpin' to this religion thing. If I had absorbed some of it when Aunt Emma and Brother Herb wanted me to I wouldn't a been here." That is one of the last earthly reflections of Walter Reppin, 18-year-old New Jersey youth, the first person condemned to die in Colorado's new lethal chamber at Canon City. Reppin, who killed Vincent Regan, Colorado City taxi driver, during a holdup, protested his being used by the State for an "experiment," but Governor Edwin C. Johnson turned down his plea, asserting that prompt carrying out of sentences will do much to prevent mob violence in his State. Although Reppin will be the first human to die in the new lethal chamber, authorities have tried it out on animals and pronounced it the most humane method of execution. The gas used (hydrocyanic) is generated under the death chair and acts in a few seconds while witnesses watch from outside through plate glass windows.

FINAL TRIBUTE PAID PASTOR EMERITUS OF PARK AVENUE CHURCH

The Park ave Congregational Church was filled with mourners for the funeral services of Rev. John G. Taylor, Pastor Emeritus of the Church who has served here for the past thirty-four years. Professor Daniel Evans, of Andover-Newton Theological Seminary, a life-long friend of Rev. Mr. Taylor conducted the services. He was assisted by Dr. Harold L. Stratton of the Pilgrim Congregational Church in Worcester who was succeeded here by Rev. Mr. Taylor, former pastor of the Park ave. Church and Rev. Clifford O. Simpson, present pastor of the Arlington Heights Church.

During the services Mrs. Gordon Smith rendered several organ selections and was assisted in two hymns by Harry Tinkham and Laura Finlay, violinists. Burial was in Mt. Auburn cemetery, Cambridge. The pallbearers were J. Howard Hayes, Herbert L. Snow, Richard O. Jenkins and Edward Nicoll, all deacons of the Park ave Congregational Church. Among the many beautiful floral pieces was a wreath from the Arlington police department.

Rev. Mr. Taylor died last Saturday at the home of his daughter, Miss Elizabeth S. Taylor of Centerville, Mass. He was 89 years of age last November 12 and had been in the ministry for half a century. He first had a pastorate in Nebraska City and later in Melrose Highlands Congregational Church for twenty years. He was pastor of a church in California for three years before coming to Arlington.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Margaret L. Taylor; two sons, H. Winthrop Taylor of Marblehead and John McIntyre of Wellesley Hills; and his daughter of Centerville. Rev. Mr. Taylor while in Arlington lived at 22 Whittemore st.

Youth Charged With Larceny Of Automobile

Sergeant Barry And Belmont Officer Give Chase And Arrest Youth — Auto Stolen In Belmont Is Abandoned Here—Damaged In Crash

In one of the most sensational police chases ever witnessed here, one youth was arrested and another made his escape only a short time after stealing a large automobile in Belmont yesterday afternoon. A score of people, attracted by the sound of the siren on the police radio car saw Sergeant Daniel O. Barry of the Arlington department and Officer Holden of Belmont make the arrest.

The youth arrested and charged by the police with having stolen the auto was Robert J. Doherty, age 19, of 77 Oak st, Somerville.

The Belmont police were notified of the theft of a large Cadillac sedan in the middle of the afternoon. Immediately they notified the Arlington police that two youths in the stolen car were headed for Arlington. Speeding over Pleasant st, the heavy car raced through Arlington Centre by the railroad crossing and sped down Mystic st with the police giving chase. The car finally came to a stop as it crashed into a fence in front of Peirce & Winn's coal yard on Mystic st.

Jumping from the car, the pair headed through backyards in the vicinity in an effort to elude the officers. Sergeant Barry and Officer Holden were hot on their trail. Finally, Doherty was apprehended in the rear of the Judge Parmenter home. The other youth was still at large early this morning. The auto was so badly damaged when driven against the fence that it had to be towed to a local garage until claimed by the owner. Doherty was turned over to the Belmont police.

Oil Burner Causes Scare

Police in a scout car made a hurry call to Comeau's Gas Station on Park ave at midnight last night when it was reported thick smoke was pouring from the building. A defective oil burner was discovered to be the cause and there was no fire according to the scout car crew.

Auto Stolen From Centre

A short time after he had left his car in front of Barry's Men Shop, J. James Sullivan of 14 Gloucester st, stepped out of the store to find the car gone yesterday afternoon.

No trace of the auto had been found up to midnight last night.

Daddy Sunshine Club Rules

1. Be kind and helpful to others.
2. Look both ways when crossing streets.
3. Always be kind to dumb animals.
4. Write a letter to Daddy Sunshine, or have Mother or Dad write it for you, every now and then.
5. Try to bring a "Ray of Sunshine" into the lives of your parents and others every day of the week and every week of the year.

These rules are not very difficult for good girls and boys to keep. Most of them are kept by them anyway.

Mail your letters and stories to Daddy Sunshine, in care of this paper. He will answer them in the Daddy Sunshine column.

Write on but one side of the paper, and place your age and address on the letter after your name. Give the day, month and year of your birth.

To join the club all you have to do is promise to keep the rules—and keep them.

AT NEW YEAR'S PARTY

Dear Daddy Sunshine:

I am starting the New Year right by sending this letter to you. I want you to know that I have made a resolution. I am going to spread more sunshine this year than ever. I went to a New Year's party yesterday afternoon at Doris Hurley's house. We had a great time and I won a prize for working out a puzzle before anyone else. I got a box of chocolates. We played all kinds of games and I sang a song. Everybody present had to do something to entertain. Some sang, some spoke pieces and one played the piano. We had ice cream and cake after the sandwiches, and tonic. There were many Sunshiners present.

Among the ones at the party were Mary Cushing, Natalie White, Anna MacDonald, May McFarlane, Dorothy Smith, Thelma Jones, Frances Cahill, Audrey Gilford, Mary Taylor, and Doris Hurley. Some of the girls said that they would join the club. I told them they would have to write a letter and tell you they wanted to join.

When is the next party? Please tell us. I am going to invite all those who were at our party who have not joined so that they can see what a great time we have.

I will write again, real soon.
Your friend,
Mary Quigley.

Daddy Sunshine was most happy to receive your letter, Mary, and is certain he will receive many more interesting ones from you. He is always glad to get accounts of parties and the names of children who attend. Many of the members go to parties, but only a few write and tell him about them. He will be glad to have your friends as members of the club.

One Line After Another

By Governor Cradock

A pamphlet entitled "Descriptive Sketch of Medford," which, according to the pencilled notation on it, was distributed about the town in 1893, comes to hand over the year-end—reminiscent of 40 years ago. It was sponsored by "the representative business men of Medford," the title reads, across the top of each page . . . and it marshals a lot of them from the old town's tradesmen of a loved and vanished past.

In the introductory sketch which has to do with the industries of the Mystic-side community, one is interested to find a reference in glowing terms to an industry that has gone, the manufacture of Medford rum, a subject which the demise of prohibition has revived in at least two groups of men who wish to set up establishments for the distilling of rum once more in the town which originally was made world-famous by the manufacture here of the earlier "XXXX" remedy or, betimes, a beverage.

Says the pamphlet: "But probably the most famous of this town's products is rum . . . known all over the world and known to be the best rum made in America. Its manufacture has been carried on here for very many years . . . but its production is not an unmixed benefit to the town for everybody has heard of 'Medford Rum' and not a few assume that a place where rum is manufactured must necessarily be infested with drunkards and afflicted with a very disorderly element in the population . . . Of course this is a narrow and prejudiced way of considering the matter, and in the past has seriously interfered with the development of Medford; But that is a thing of the past and no intelligent person would think of avoiding residence here on that account. The fact is, Medford is one of the most orderly cities or towns in the State. As for prevalence of drunkenness and the opinion of the citizens on that subject, Medford is what some consider a most surprising place where intoxicants are largely manufactured—a 'temperance town'."

So much for that. Let some of the business men of forty years ago march past: C. R. Drew—Central Market. "There is a good deal of sameness in the provision business and it is not surprising that the majority of houses should fall into ruts and jog along in the same old way . . . exceptions are prominent and the policy followed by Mr. C. R. Drew is certainly out of the common, for this gentleman is at all times alert, wide-awake and progressive, offering a stock comprising seasonable goods and quoting bottom prices on all articles dealt in."

John Crowley, "dealer in beef, mutton, pork, lamb, tripe, pigs' feet, fruit and vegetables . . . at No. 23 Main st . . . a progressive house founded by its present genial proprietor, who is now the oldest provision dealer in town . . . his success has been gratifying both to himself and to his numerous friends."

Page & Curtin, "dealers in hardware, stoves, crockery, glass, wooden and tin ware, manufacturers of tin, copper and sheet iron ware; plumbing and gas fitting, No. 17 Main st. Established in 1847 by Mr. John D. Small it is now carried on by Mr. Henry R. Page, a native of Maine, A. F. Curtin and J. E. Gates, of Massachusetts. These gentlemen are all very widely known in Medford and vicinity, and it is not praise but a simple statement of facts to say that no other firm in this section has a higher reputation for integrity."

A Beach, "Registered Pharmacist, No. 204 High st, opp. depot. West Medford—there are very few enterprises that can trace their origin back more than a quarter of a century, and for this reason if for no other, the undertaking conducted by Mr. A. Beach is deserving of prominent and honorable mention, for it was founded in 1864 by Messrs. J. W. Tufts & Co., the store at the time being one of the oldest of its kind. Since 1872 the present proprietor has had undisturbed possession. A large and complete stock of drugs, medicines and chemicals is carried and it is a favorite resort with those wishing to have physicians' prescriptions compounded."

John Tutten, "dealer in all kinds of granite monuments, headstones, tablets, edgestones, buttresses, etc. Cemetery work of every description neatly executed. Lettering a specialty. Offices and works No. 40 Canal st. Not one of our local monumental workers has a higher reputation than Mr. Tutten and the extensive business he has built up since 1889 is a natural consequence of the methods which have given rise to such a reputation."

Samuel Dinsmore, "Hack, Livery and Boarding Stable. Telephone 6150. Particular attention given to furnishing carriages for weddings, funerals, etc. Barges for picnic and other parties. The majority of those who patronize livery stables are not unreasonable and therefore do not expect us to furnish horses that can trot in 2:30, or carriages that look as if they never had been used. The methods followed by Mr. Samuel Dinsmore might be profitably imitated by other stable keepers. He makes no extravagant claims, and his rigs compare favorably with the average private turnout. He began operations here in 1887. He has one big four-horse barge, also one for two horses."

Medford House. "Daniel K. Emerson, Prop.—The Medford House is most emphatically one of the 'Institutions' of Medford, for it was built almost 90 years ago, has always enjoyed an extensive and select patronage, and today occupies a leading position among the high-grade road-houses that are so important a factor in the popularity of rides and drives in and around Boston. We use the term 'roadhouse' in describing a well managed and equipped hotel. The house was built in 1804 and was at one time known as the 'Betsy Baker Hotel'."

George Nichols, "Funeral Director, Undertaker and Embalmer.—Office and Warerooms, No. 26 High St. There is no question but that a prompt, reliable, competent and economical undertaking service is a decided benefit to the public in general, and as that furnished by Mr. George Nichols, assisted by his sons, Mr. Geo. W. and Mr. Sidney O. Nichols, is unsurpassed in any and all of these respects, we need make no apology for directing the attention of our readers to it. Mr. Nichols is a native of Wilmington, Mass., and as he has carried on his present profession in Medford since 1864, is too well known here to render extended personal mention necessary."

James R. Young, "Caterer—luncheons, parties, collations and weddings, ices, harlequins, bomb glaces and biscuit. We can unreservedly recommend Mr. Young as a caterer to the most exacting . . . He was educated in Paris as a professional cook; was engaged in the catering business in New Orleans for 9 years, and since served as steward on the yacht 'Gitana', owned by Mr. W. F. Weld. A specialty is made of French and Creole dishes, and it is worthy of note that like all true chefs Mr. Young is bound by no set and conventional rules. He has an unsurpassed way of preparing Sultana Roll and Biscuit Tortoni, and their merit is not a matter of chance, but is positively assured. Mr. Young began operations in West Medford in 1889. His residence is No. 27 Jerome st."

Accounting Course Offered By The State

James A. Moyer, State Director of University Extension, announces the addition of "Mathematics for Accounting" and "Bookkeeping" to the home study courses of the State Department of Education. The new bookkeeping course is intended for men and women who need an elementary knowledge of how to keep accounts and who wish to learn the proper methods of recording financial transactions.

The mathematics for accounting course is designed to develop an understanding of the mathematical problems of advanced accounting and auditing.

"With the addition of these two courses," Director Moyer points out, "State University Extension now offers a graded training in accounting for persons who cannot attend class courses." These units of instruction begin with the new bookkeeping course and continue through "Elementary Accounting," "Principles of Accounting," "Cost Accounting," "Auditing and Public Accounting," and "C. P. A. Preparatory Course."

"Accountancy," Director Moyer declares, "is coming to be a recognized profession. There can be no doubt as to its increasing importance in the efficient management of all types of business. For persons who are striving for top places it is important that they obtain a working knowledge of modern accounting methods."

The addition of these two new courses brings to 227 the total number of academic, business, engineering, industrial, and home economics subjects which are available for correspondence study. Full details may be obtained from University Extension, State House, Boston.

to push sales volume back somewhere near what it must be to make net profit.

Brighter 1934

"There is only one thing to be read from the reports of increased holiday sales which have come to the National Retail Dry Goods Association from all over the nation", declared Mr. Hahn. "That is better business for 1934. In my opinion it is almost impossible to overestimate the value to general business which will spring from this increase in retail business. Many of the producers of consumers' goods almost simultaneously with retailers have shared in this improvement. Gradually the effect of these increased sales will find its way throughout all the channels of business and will be multiplied as it goes along. The psychological effect of this process is also something which must be appraised at a high value because of what it unquestionably is doing to restore confidence.

U. S. Projects Will Help

"It is my opinion that 1934 will witness a considerable increase in business activity. Some of the federal government's major recovery projects have not been underway long enough to have achieved the effects that they were designed to have. There is every reason to believe that next spring these projects will be registering heavily as influences leading to increased business activity. Wage payments in connection with the public works program and payments from processing taxes will operate to bring whole sections into possession of funds which will gradually work their way back into the business stream."

"During four depression years the eyes of business have been strained for a glimpse of something which might be regarded as a change of trend. It seems to me that such a change of trend is now definitely at hand, and, while wise business management will realize the need of going carefully until it can be established that this is unmistakably true, nevertheless, I believe the situation does call for some degree of enthusiasm and a willingness to be convinced that we can safely put off the worst of our pessimism."

Gives Credit to NRA

The NRA program is contributing definitely to the growth of confidence on the part of the general public, and business already has had some fairly substantial benefits from this co-operation with government in the opinion of Mr. Hahn.

There still are some who argue that the natural forces of recovery are at work under the surface and that anything like a pickup in business activity which we may have witnessed would have come anyway and without the NRA. Regardless of what one's opinion on this subject may be it seems to me vitally important that business should cooperate wholeheartedly in the government program. This development has gone too far to justify business in any overhasty willingness to have it cast aside. Common sense would seem to dictate that NRA must have complete cooperation from business.

"So far as uneasiness about the President's money policies and what Congress may or may not want to do in this or other fields are concerned, it should be remembered that the President has shown himself more concerned with a restoration of prosperity than anyone, and it seems unlikely that he will fly in the face of sound advice to the making of harmful decisions. Congress has always been a problem. As Mark Twain said about the weather 'a great deal has been said about it but nothing done about it.' Instead of business hesitating now pending Congressional action, it would seem wise to discount that problem and go out for the big opportunity to push sales volume back somewhere near what it must be to make net profit."

Did You Ever Stop To Think

by Edison R. White

It is said that the average taxpayer takes little interest in municipal affairs; that they are indifferent regarding questions which have a vital bearing on their welfare. That allegation is, to a certain extent, true.

The taxpayer is apathetic when municipal affairs are concerned. They do not attend meetings of the city fathers and do not insist that all city, financial and other conditions be published in the advertising columns of the newspapers regularly so they can discuss among themselves and take up with the city officials questions in which they have a general interest.

City officials should do their best to get the taxpayers together and explain what is being done and what they expect to do. By so doing, they would interest the people in their own affairs and encourage them to play their part in the development of the city.

PAY ENVELOPE UNDER THE BLUE EAGLE — A LIVING WAGE!

YOUNG GIRLS—elderly women—receiving 20c a dozen for hemming baby dresses and making the buttonholes . . . being paid five cents apiece for making evening purses which bore the label, "Made in France", (the beaded fabric which they worked on came from Paris) . . . earning $3.20 a week sewing dresses on a power machine. . . . That was three months ago . . . under the vulture method! Today they are receiving a Blue Eagle pay envelope which contains a living wage . . . never less than $13 for a full time week . . . a week that's comfortably filled, with no over-time and a generous lunch hour. These are facts. Similar signs of progress prevail in many industries. Continued buying insures healthful living and working conditions—nationally.

Your Buying IS DOING ITS PART

EMPLOYMENT and wages in the wholesale and retail trade of Massachusetts increased substantially during the month of October, as reported by the State Department of Labor and Industry.

Industrial payrolls of Durham, N. C., as compiled by the Durham Chamber of Commerce, made a gain for the week ending November 4, 1933, of $98,437.24 over the same week of a year ago.

Bank clearings in the five-day business week ended November 8th were up 24.2 per cent from a year ago, according to Dun & Bradstreet.

"FIRE CONTROL" FOR 1934

Locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen is a common human weakness. And one wonders how many communities have done this in the case of fire. Hundreds of them have undoubtedly permitted fire departments to sink below the point of efficiency until a major fire destroyed irreplaceable lives and property.

Any time is a good time to rehabilitate the fire department. But the best time is always "before" the potential great fire occurs. That's especially true in small towns and rural areas, where fire loss tends to be abnormally high. Worn-out apparatus, sub-standard apparatus, a poorly trained personnel, these are the friends of conflagration, the enemies of security and prosperity.

Every community should make a new year's resolution to modernize the fire department, provide it with the best of apparatus, and make 1934 a banner "fire control" year.

RAILROADS WAKING UP

The worm is turning. The worm in this case is the railroads, which have suffered for years from legislation and competitive handicaps. First step to bring back dwindling traffic will be drastic improvement in passenger trains, including air-conditioning, elimination of wheel shock, noise, etc. Elaborate plans have been announced for the building of new stream-lined trains, such as the Union Pacific's, which will be the ultimate in speed, comfort and convenience for surface transportation.

A reduced rate policy has spread to all parts of the country. Recently Western roads dropped the fifty per cent Pullman surcharge, as well as reducing fares.

Latest, most argued development, is the Pennsylvania Railroad's venture into less than carload lot freight shipments with store-to-door service. It has contracts with trucking concerns in 2,000 communities whereby the trucker picks up goods, takes them to the station, where they are delivered by rail to their destination, where another trucker finishes the job. The shipper pays one price to the railroad. The Boston & Maine offers this same service.

THREE IN HOSPITAL FOLLOWING LOCAL AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Three people, all members of the same family are at the Symmes Arlington hospital as a result of injuries received in an automobile accident on Pleasant st. here early yesterday morning. The injured are:

Ophelia Mosca, 44; Nicholas Masco, 57, and Lena Mosco, 13, all of 16 Channing st., Belmont. They were taken to the Symmes hospital by a passing autoist. X-rays taken yesterday to determine whether or not Mrs. Mosca had suffered a fractured rib failed to reveal such injuries although she suffered lacerations to the hip and contusions of the chest. Lena Mosca was badly cut about the legs.

The accident happened in front of 244 Pleasant st. when a car owned and operated by Romeo Mosca, of Malden, collided with another auto owned and operated by John BeMerritt, of 38 Temple st., Arlington.

Another Injured

In another automobile accident at the corner of Newport and Gloucester sts., Pasquall Cataloni, of Maret rd., Lexington, suffered injuries to his back when the truck in which he was riding was in collision with an auto owned and operated by John P. Gard, of 106 Newport st. The truck was operated by Chester K. Lind, of Lexington and is owned by a firm in that town.

AIRAMBLINGS

Four more stations have been added to the list broadcasting the Voice of Experiences daily noontime (EST) chats. They are WCCO in Minneapolis, WOWO in Fort Wayne, WWVA, West Virginia, and KFAB, Lincoln. . . . Incidentally, two radio critics, each working separately from the other, have set up a clamor for a debate between the Voice and Father Coughlin, on any subject they might select. What a grand broadcast that would be! . . . That new Court of Human Relations program, which opens over NBC January 7, will be based on the ideal human relations court, as suggested by several leading members of the bench. Regular court procedure is discarded—there is just a kindly, fair-minded judge, who himself questions witnesses, from whichever side he wishes, to bring out every side of the case. . . . Nothing pleases Edwin C. Hill more than to meet veteran reporters, because inside of two minutes they have established mutual acquaintances. A young reporter however, is not so satisfactory, because when Hill says: "And do you know old Joe Zilch on the Daily Blat?" the youngster just looks blank, and there you are. . . . Olga Albani's youngster, Guido, received a "Bobby Benson" cowboy suit for Christmas, and bang-bangs are resounding through her apartment. . . . Andre Baruch replaces Louis Dean as announcer on Peter Dixon's "Bobby Benson" program this week, and will be known as "Andy" Baruch to the kids. He's still "Andre", however, to his group-up audience. . . . Many a star hopes his sponsor, in entering the new year, will turn over a new leaf—of the company check book. And a happy New Year to yez, boys and girls.

DISTRICT COMMISSION STATES AUXILIARY WATER SUPPLY NOT NECESSARY

In the conclusion of the special report submitted by the Metropolitan District commission, relative to the advisability of establishing an adequate auxiliary water supply for communities supplied with water from Spot Pond reservoir the commission, consisting of Davis B. Keniston, William F. Rogers, Melvin B. Breath, Felix A. Marcella and Joseph B. Jacobs, states that in view of the experiences which are outlined in the report, the large expense of providing an auxiliary supply for Spot Pond is not necessary or justified.

The report is of interest to users of water from Spot Pond reservoir, and is the result of a resolve, entered on May 5, 1933, Chapter 12, of the General Laws, which was approved by Governor Ely, as follows: Resolved, That the Metropolitan District commission is hereby authorized and directed to investigate the advisability and probable cost of establishing and maintaining an adequate auxiliary water supply for supplying water, in cases of emergency, to communities now supplied with water from Spot Pond reservoir. Said commission shall report to the general court the results of its investigation and its recommendations, if any, together with drafts of legislation necessary to carry said recommendations into effect by filing the same with the clerk of the house of representatives on or before the first Wednesday of December, in the current year.

The report of the commission follows:

Places Served

Spot Pond Reservoir, located in the town of Stoneham and within the Middlesex Fells Reservation, is a distributing or equalizing reservoir for Malden, Melrose, Medford, Everett, Chelsea, East Boston, Somerville, Revere, Winthrop, Stoneham, Nahant and Swampscott. The water is now pumped from the reservoir to the Fells and Bear Hill high service reservoirs for the entire supply of Melrose, Nahant, Revere, Stoneham, Swampscott and Winthrop, and for supplying the higher parts of Chelsea, East Boston, Everett, Malden, Medford and Somerville. At times some water is supplied by gravity from Spot Pond to the lower portions of Chelsea, East Boston, Everett, Malden, Medford and Somerville.

Storage Capacity

The total pumpage from Spot Pond now averages about thirteen million gallons a day, equivalent to a depth of about one and one half inches over the entire pond, which, when full, has an area of three hundred and nine acres and a storage capacity of one hundred million gallons of water per foot of depth.

Most of the yield of the original Spot Pond watershed is now diverted from the pond, which is now used only as an equalizing reservoir in connection with the operation of works for supplying a very large portion of the Metropolitan Water District with water drawn from sources on the Sudbury, Nashua and Ware River watersheds. The distance from Spot Pond to these watersheds by way of the water supply conduits is 25 miles to the Sudbury and 40 miles to the Nashua, in a westerly direction.

Could Not Abandon

On account of the large quantity of water drawn from these distant sources, Spot Pond could not be abandoned as an equalizing reservoir without providing an equivalent substitute, and as there are now no other available sources of water supply of the necessary capacity and quality, within 25 miles of Spot Pond, and because of the very large expense involved, it is not advisable to consider the development of an entirely new source of water supply for the communities now supplied from the pond.

Cost of Substitute

Although not so stated in the resolve, it is assumed that the object sought by the resolve is to provide another method for obtaining water from the existing sources without the use of Spot Pond when the water therein has an objectionable taste and odor, such as prevailed early in 1932. To provide a new equalizing reservoir to be used as a substitute for Spot Pond it would be necessary to go some distance from Spot Pond to obtain a site of proper elevation and sufficient size, and the cost of acquiring the site, building the reservoir and the necessary pipe connections would probably approximate $2,000,000. It would be possible to provide an additional reservoir by dyking off a part of Spot Pond, but such works also would be expensive.

Other Suggestions

A similar result could be accomplished by installing emergency pumping machinery at the old Mystic Pumping Station on the Mystic River in Somerville, and laying a new force main from that point to connect with the existing northern high service supply main in Pleasant Street at Highland Avenue in Malden. The quantity of water required for the northern high service could not be pumped directly from the supply mains at the old Mystic Station without disturbing the normal use of these lines, but arrangements can be made by using the old Mystic Reservoir on the hill near Tufts College as an equalizer from which to supply the pumps. Small booster pumps would also be required at the existing Spot Pond Pumping Station to pump water from the Fells Reservoir service to the Bear Hill Reservoir for supplying the town of Stoneham, when not pumping water from Spot Pond. The estimated cost of establishing the proposed works, which would provide for the high service only, is $450,000. The probable cost of maintaining the works would be about 10 per cent of the installation cost for interest and depreciation and the small amount of fuel and labor required for emergency operation.

None of these methods suggested would necessarily accomplish the desired result, as the Weston and Sudbury reservoirs are subject to the same growths giving objectionable tastes and odors, and the water used by the communities supplied by Spot Pond must come from these sources. Any reservoir provided as a substitute for Spot Pond might at the same time have the same objectionable tastes and odors as Spot Pond.

Cause of Taste and Odors

The objectionable taste and odor of the water pumped from Spot Pond early in 1932 was due to a growth of microscopic organisms in the water in the pond, which is likely to occur from time to time in any of the open reservoirs. In earlier years it was usually possible to discontinue the use for a time of any reservoir in which an objectionable growth of organisms occurred and allow the organisms to disappear from natural causes. Later, with the approval of the State Department of Public Health, copper sulphate was applied to destroy the organisms in storage reservoirs which could be kept out of service for several weeks after the algicide was applied.

Treatment Oke

Previous to the trouble at Spot Pond in 1932, copper sulphate had never been used on the Metropolitan Water Works in any distribution reservoir while water was being drawn therefrom for consumption, because the Department of Public Health in earlier years had felt that the application of copper sulphate could not safely be made where the water was being used directly as a supply. Because of more recent experiences of the use of this chemical in minute quantities, that department concluded that such treatment could safely be used, provided that water was not treated at points nearer than 500 feet from any intake. The treatment of the water of this reservoir in 1932 was unfortunately delayed for about two weeks, as the reservoir was frozen over and the copper sulphate could not be applied; but as soon as the ice disappeared from the reservoir copper sulphate was applied, as approved by the Department of Public Health, the microscopic organisms were destroyed, and the objectionable tastes and odors disappeared. Since that time on several occasions organisms have appeared in sufficient numbers to be noticeable in other reservoirs of the system, as well as again in Spot Pond, but the prompt treatment of the water has destroyed the organisms before the tastes and odors became objectionable. These experiences show that these organisms can be safely treated by copper sulphate before the tastes and odors become objectionable, and that the trouble which occurred in 1932 can be prevented at small expense.

In view of these experiences the Commission does not feel that the large expense of providing an auxiliary supply for Spot Pond is necessary or justified.

Laughing Around the World
With IRVIN S. COBB

Solving a Dark Mystery

By IRVIN S. COBB

ACHMED ABDULLAH, the novelist and short story writer, is an Afgan, a descendant of an old noble family of Afganistan and a son of a former Governor of Kabul. He was educated in Europe, and he has lived and adventured pretty much all over the world. Being a natural linguist, he has picked up tongues as he went until today he knows as many languages and jargons as probably any living man knows.

With the rank of captain he was on recruiting service once for the British army in Cairo. To him came an Egyptian officer of police to ask his aid. It seemed that two native officers had picked up in the bazaars a black man whose nationality was unknown and whose purposes were unfathomable, seeing that he could not be made to understand the questions put to him by his captors.

Being admitted to the cell, the Abdullah proceeded to fire simple questions at the captive, first in French, then in Afgan and then in Ashantee, in Turkish, in Tibetan, in Greek, in Chinese, in Persian and in Batu. There was no response; the black merely continued to glower at him dumbly. So then Abdullah tried him in some of the tongues of the Sahara Desert and in the clucking dialects of one or two Congo tribes and finally in Zuleuse, with which he was also more or less familiar. Still the hunched up figure gave no sign of understanding.

In despair Abdullah gave it up. "I wonder," he said aloud to himself in English, "what in thunder are you, anyway?"

With a bellow of thanksgiving the prisoner leaped to his feet.

"Boss," he whooped, "I see a Free Will Baptist!"

And so he was—a country dorky from Alabama who had shipped on a tramp steamer out of New Orleans, he deserted off the African coast, swimming ashore naked, and had for days past been dodging about the native quarters, growing hourly more bewildered and more desperate in these strange surroundings.

SAYS STANDARDS WILL BE LOWERED BY CUT IN SCHOOL BUDGETS

Can we afford not to educate our children?

Shall we allow our standard of education to rise or fall with the stock market?

Shall we allow a financial depression to threaten our children's future—to deprive them of what we Americans consider an inalienable right—the right to the best that schools can give?

These are questions being asked by Mrs. Fred L. Pigeon of East Boston, Chairman of the Department of Education of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, as part of the vigorous campaign she is waging through the 14,600 clubs comprising the Federation, against the slashing of education budgets.

"The individual business man is, as a rule, as uninformed in school administration as are teachers in the management of business," Mrs. Pigeon declared. "Unwise attacks upon schools or business may ruin either. There is need in every community for free conference of all interested in education—school people, business men, women's club members, and individual parents. We have been operating in separate groups. Let us get together for the good of the schools."

Blames Politicians

"Too many financiers, tax payers and politicians are posing as educators. To many educators are trying to evaluate education in dollars and cents. Let it be determined in any given community by those most competent to decide what that community can afford to pay for education; then leave to the educator the authority to decide what the content and procedure shall be."

"Examine your public school system candidly, intelligently and courageously, both internally and externally," Mrs. Pigeon urges. "Above all else, guard the schools against false economy. Inadequate supplies, poorly qualified and underpaid teachers, and cheap buildings do not always mean that they involve the least outlay of money."

"A thorough investigation should be made in anticipation of a reorganization of our industrial education system in order to meet the decline of employment opportunity. The most discouraging and tragic problem in education today is how to rearrange our system of education so that the college graduate and the high school graduate has a fair chance of being absorbed into some gainful occupation.

To Help Graduates

"Our high schools are graduating thousands of young men and women each June, eager to enter the business world or to continue their studies, but prevented from doing either of these things by conditions for which they are in no way responsible. These young people become discouraged and, in many instances, anti-social. Two procedures seem to me concurrently feasible. Each would be an emergency measure. First, a definite status should be given to post-graduates in our high schools. Communities should set up temporarily a distinct division of the school system to safeguard their well-being and, above all, some qualified person should be given definite responsibility for this group and its proper care and direction."

"Secondly, some of our most populous centers should go farther and organize emergency junior colleges to be operated at a minimum cost, in buildings which could be had at little or no rental. Educational leaders and public-minded citizens could do no greater service at this critical hour than to give merited consideration to these post-high school problems. Energy and intelligence applied at this point will return abundant dividends in wise, orderly, and well-oriented citizens."

Religious School To Open Tonight

The Mystic Valley Council of Religious Education will open a Leadership Training School this evening at Tufts College School of Religion. Professor John M. Ratcliff, head of the department of religious education at the Tufts College School of Religion is dean of the school. Miss Helen E. Cunningham, director of religious education at the Orthodox Congregational church, will teach two classes, one in junior materials and methods and one in story telling in religious education.

Ring Out the Old—In the New

As the old year gave way to the new, so did the old mayor of New York, John P. O'Brien, move out of City Hall as his successor, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, took over the reins of city government. Here the outgoing executive (left) and Mayor LaGuardia exchange greetings as change was made at City Hall.

A Profitable Investment

EVENTS of the last few years have caused many people to ponder the insecurity and uncertainty of the average types of financial investments. This may lead to a more spiritual concept of substance, because a careful consideration discloses the fact that materiality in any form is unsubstantial, insecure, and uncertain; whereas the things of God are substantial, secure, and permanent. While legitimate investments, helpful to humanity, are quite proper when correctly and wisely made, nevertheless financial interests should at all times be secondary in consideration, and spiritual understanding of "the deep things of God," primary.

To invest means, among other things, to confer, to endow, to vest (in). One of the definitions of "vest" is, "To put in possession so as to give an immediate fixed right of present or future enjoyment." How descriptive is this definition of the result which one obtains who turns to God, Spirit, for guidance, protection, supply, and peace! Reliance upon God bears immediate fruitage, for it indeed vests the reliant one with "an immediate fixed right" to enjoy the blessings from God's power. This reliance is not too transcendental in its adaptation or realization at this present and in all time. Centuries ago Christ Jesus used a parable to illustrate the value of the kingdom of heaven. He told of a man who found a "pearl of great price." Note, that while it was a pearl of great value, a "great price" was required to purchase it. So highly did the man value this pearl, and so much did he desire to possess it, that he "sold all that he had, and bought it." At another time Jesus said, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Surely there could be no more profitable investment than the kingdom of God and His righteousness; and no greater profit could be obtained from an investment, for the promise is that not part of, but "all these things shall be added unto you."

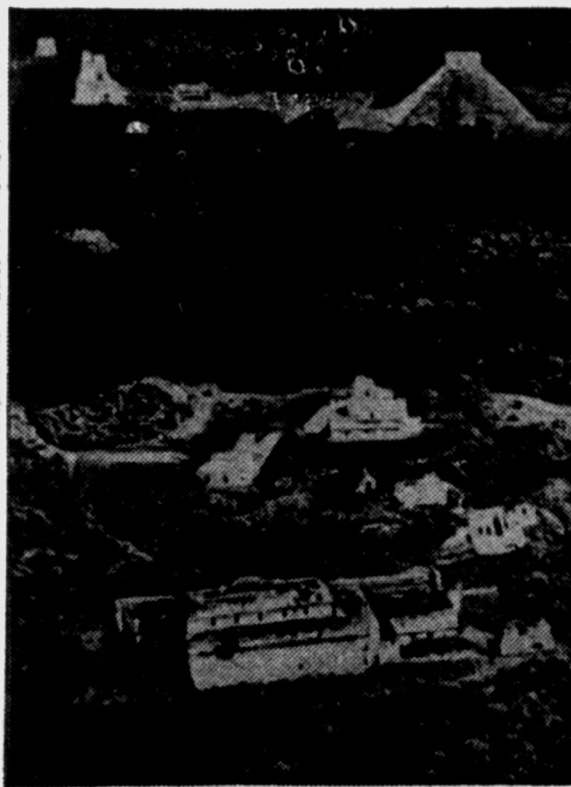

By his words and works, Christ Jesus, the Way-shower for mankind, revealed that it is always practical to seek first and always to do the will of the Father. His life demonstrated that such simple trust in God is the only really profitable investment and is entirely practical in human experience. No one, before or after Jesus' time, has ever shown forth, as did he, the wealth and profit which such an investment produces. His spirituality derived from God, Spirit, was sufficient to meet all human needs, even to raising the dead, stilling the tempest, walking on the water; and we may conclude that his own human need was provided for as well, without lack or limitation. His was the seamless garment of high price in those days. He had sufficient money to meet the financial needs, such as paying taxes and contributing to the poor; and he was not at a loss to know what to do with the multitudes in the desert places. So practical was his faith and trust in God that he was able to feed all and leave a surplus.

Nor was the proof of God's ample reward confined to Christ Jesus or his time. Notable among those whose faith and trust in God was abundantly rewarded is Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science. Like the great Master, she not only was endowed with pure spiritual understanding, but was able to demonstrate in practical manner that her faith in God was well rewarded in freedom from lack and limitation. She proved that pure spirituality cannot be denied expression. And in Christian Science, Mrs. Eddy has given the rules which enable others to invest their all with God and receive surely and abundantly the good which He has prepared for all His children.

As the understanding of God, good, unfolds in human consciousness through the study of Christian Science, the student finds that this correct knowledge of God brings healing from disease, deformity, discomfort, and fear. It comforts the sorrowing, binds up the broken-hearted, and encourages the weary ones. Like the man who found the "pearl of great price" and sold all that he had in order to obtain it, the student of Christian Science finds it advisable and necessary to dispose of false material concepts as soon as possible and strive to gain the pearl of spirituality, the consciousness of God's presence, power, and Science. "Seeking is not sufficient whereby to arrive at the results of Science; you must strive; and the glory of the strife comes of honesty and humility," writes Mrs. Eddy (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 341). In the transitional state of consciousness these words on the same page are encouraging: "Do human hopes deceive? Is joy a trembler? Then, weary pilgrim, unloose the latchet of thy sandals; for the place whereon thou standest is sacred. By that, you may know you are parting with a material sense of life and happiness to win the spiritual sense of good. O learn to lose with God! and you find Life eternal; you gain all." —The Christian Science Monitor.

Mixing a love of adventure with a desire to aid science, Robert Buck and Robert Nixon, 19-year-old aviators, of Westville, N. J., will start a two-months exploring trip from Mexico City next month in an endeavor to shed more light on the ancient Mayan civilization, traces of which are preserved in ruins throughout Mexico, Honduras and Guatemala. They plan to visit the ruins photographed by Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh a couple of years ago, after which they will seek hitherto undiscovered ruins in the jungles of Honduras and Guatemala. Whatever the young adventurers find during their exploration will go to the University of Pennsylvania.
